The Sounds of the Cross

Two Sundays ago (4/14) I preached a sermon entitled "The Sounds of the Cross." The sermon was intended to look at the events of the Friday that Jesus was crucified. I told the story using mostly Scripture; however, I did not announce the Scripture references so as to allow the story to continue to flow. The Scriptures used were taken from all four Gospel accounts and intertwined to try to paint the picture of the whole story. I relied heavily on The Story by Randy Frazee and Max Lucado. I also used several commentaries focused on harmonizing the Gospel accounts. For those who may have been wondering or would like to read the story again in that same format, I want to use this space to share those Scripture references in the order I read them. I hope this will continue to serve as a blessing to everyone.

Love you all!
Stephen

SEASONS

By the time the summer solstice occurs, it feels as if the season has been in full swing for weeks. It's bittersweet that just when summer officially starts, the length of daylight begins decreasing. Before we're ready to let go of the season, summer marches toward fall, and then winter with the year's shortest day.

Yet that is our Creator's plan: "You have fixed all the boundaries of the earth; you have made summer and winter" (Psalm 74:17, ESV). God fashioned the world to be beautiful, good and perfectly symmetrical. With concise order, he ordained seasons, rhythms, orbits and natural boundaries. As God's beloved children, we're blessed to enjoy the intricacies and patterns of this magnificent universe.
